Notes to Editors:

Acta, which was admitted to AIM in October 2005, is a manufacturer of platinum-free catalysts for the portable electronics and renewables markets. Acta uses a patented manufacturing process to make uniquely active catalysts, branded HYPERMEC, which are able to perform as effectively as expensive platinum catalysts. Acta's catalysts offer customers technical usage benefits, significant cost savings and allow for the first time the use of ethanol, which is a safe and environmentally friendly fuel. Products in the target portable electronics market include laptop computers and mobile phones, and in the renewables market include electricity supply, automotive power and hydrogen generation.
